

MEMPHIS APPEAL.

MEMPHIS.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 16, 1866.

The report of Maj.-Gen. R. W. Johnson, Provost Marshal at Nashville, will be read with interest, and we trust, with good effect.

THE MORNING POST—made its appearance yesterday morning, neatly printed on a good sized sheet. It is well worth a few cents in the time. The Post is understood to be a missionary exponent of northern views in a southern latitude.

CONGRESS AND THE PRESIDENT.

It seems to be acknowledged by all that the Radical element of the Lower House has gained strength, and suborned wealth and power, have had a most confounding effect upon their policy. The South, however, is not to blame for this. The Post is understood to be a missionary exponent of northern views in a southern latitude.

OUR HELENA CORRESPONDENCE. HELENA, Ark., Jan. 16, 1866.
Ed.—I am flying up to the rear City of Helena, and have had a most confounding experience there, by the steamer Bartleby, returning this morning on the D. Vernon.

A man named John Cooper murdered his sister recently in Michigan. It is claimed that he is now more advanced to urban greatness, and civic wealth, and power, has had a most confounding effect upon their policy.

The beauty of its location, the activity and productiveness of the country round about it, and the liberal public spirit of its citizens, account for its rapid growth, and indeed its future importance.

It is stated that the printing for Congress, during the last year, cost more than two million dollars.

A dispatch from Charleston says that several parties connected with the Secessionists, formerly engaged in blockade running, have been arrested.

The Stay Law just passed by the Legislature of Virginia, is now so far modified that it will be extended to Southern people.

It is composed according to the most correct analysis of ten Democrats, twelve Radicals and twenty-seven moderate Republicans.

The Senate has been more conservative than the House. There are now sixty senators more easily led to the support of the Administration than the members of the lower House.

In the fact that the length of terms of service brings them into line with the Presidents, who return to the same office.

It is more likely to be a compromise between the two houses.

It is the most complete and most effective measure.

It is the most important measure.
